

GREETINGS!

My name is David Johnson and I'm an executive creative with over 25 years of experience. My overall focus has been in design, ideation and creative strategy for the full range of channels. At the risk of sounding immodest, I have built a highly reputable career with an amazing variety of creative experiences. More importantly, I've had a great time getting here.

I am currently serving as the Global Creative Director at Inmar, an international firm with holdings across promotions, media, healthcare, data analytics and logistics. I lead a passionate team of multi-channel creatives across 3 locations in the US, creating materials to serve our collective interests. We have just launched a full rebrand for the 4,500 employee company. Exciting stuff.

I also serve as the Director of User Experience and Product Design at Inmar. That means a deep understanding of the product space and all-important interlocks with engineering. In that capacity, I have conceived and launched large B2C digital initiatives, knitting together facets of Inmar's capabilities. To that end, I am also a certified Scrum Master and certified Scrum Product Owner.

Before Inmar, I served as the Global Digital Creative Director at Whole Foods Market. There, I led the Digital Experience Design Team -- that included UX Analysts, Interaction Designers and Visual Designers. Everything we created underscored the brand in both the traditional digital and native mobile spaces. I was also responsible for defining the digital brand for Whole Foods Market at large and worked to bring it into a more contemporary space.

Before that, I did close to 20 years in the agency space at all levels, rising to the role of Executive Creative Director. From time spent working as a part of and leading passionate teams for boutique shops, to 9 years as President / ECD at my own award-winning agency to design leadership in a multinational environment, it was an exciting ride to be sure.

Perhaps a better way to get to know me is through my work ::

In summary, I love being a part of a dynamic creative atmosphere, turning out smart, well-targeted and cool work. I feel I have a lot to offer creatively, strategically and as a leader and always want to make a fundamental contribution to my workplace atmosphere. I pride myself on effective communication and have a demonstrated reputation for unifying teams, even in diverse groups. I have fun doing what I do, enjoy people, work hard and get excited about good work. I love to be surrounded by others that do, too.
